

In Brief

community | growth | leadership

Summary

Airflo was designed to fill the gap many employers leave behind: helping you transition to a position of greater responsibility, whether management or a more strategic leadership position. The core content will cover essential leadership skills, but more importantly will create a community of fellow leaders from a variety of industries and geographies, giving you direct access to the best real-world experience and support.

What you'll learn

Delivery of the program is rooted in coaching methodology, meaning it is bespoke to you and tailored to your specific learning needs. This is not a one-size-fits-all course. You will learn more about yourself, your natural working style, and, crucially, about others - and how you can use that insight to collaborate in an exponentially more effective way. You will have an opportunity to be coached one-to-one on your specific issues or challenges. And you will follow a program of specific topics which will be presented in a interactive and participatory way. This is not school.

For you if...

You are in, about to be in, or you want to be in a leadership position. You want to maximise your chances of success in that role. You have some leadership experience, or none. You want to expand your network both within and outside your current industry and geography. You are interested in developing yourself in a unique and original way.

Not for you if...

You are content in your existing role and are not looking for career growth. You are comfortable with professional development taking a long time. You want to examine leadership in an abstract way as an observer, rather than in a concrete way as a participant.
