BEHIND THE SCENES

PAPERMAKING

Papermaking is an ancient skill in India. Cotton rags and textile scraps are chopped, pulped and dyed and spread over a mesh screen. The cellulose-rich fibres then bind together to form the paper. Excess water is squeezed out and each sheet is hung out to dry, before being pressed in a calendering machine to smooth out the creases.

PRODUCT MAKING

Product making is an art. Every product goes through hundreds of hands. it is a story of makers. We are a team of very talented artisans from Sanganer, Jaipur. We as designers support and encourage their unique styles of product making so that their actual talent can be shown to the world. Product making is a process of steps which follows a route. The steps involved are paper making, hand printing, die cutting, making, pasting etc. Every process is done by hand. it is a very slow process. Our main focus in quality. We follow zero waste policy by recycling the waste generated while making.

PRINTING PROCESS

HAND BLOCK PRINTING

Hand carved wooden blocks are used to manually stamp beautiful designs on to our handmade cotton paper, using only the experienced eye and dexterity of the printer. Once positioned, the handle of the block is given a sharp tap to release the print paste on to the paper. Symmetry forms the core of the design and pattern repeats must be perfectly balanced.

A separate wooden block is used for each colour application. The colours are stamped one at a time and a high level of skill and precision is required to produce every sheet.

This ancient textile printing technique is labour intensive but the results are truly amazing.

HAND MARBLING

Paper marbling is an ancient method of aqueous surface design which can produce very interesting patterns.
 Oil-based colours are floated in a shallow marbling tray and designs are created with a wooden stick using a kind of painting technique.
 Each sheet is then carefully lowered into this tray and the pattern transfers on to the paper.
 The sheets are then hung up to dry naturally.
 Every sheet in our collection is individually hand marbled by our skilled artisans, making them truly unique.

Customer service is our utmost priority. We pride ourselves in the quality of our products and want to make sure you have a positive experience.
