

Year In Review 2022

What an exciting year we had! We have so many people to thank and we are grateful for the support of the arts community. We continue to live out our core values as we share meaningful art with the community. They are Performance Excellence, Service, Teaching, Giving, and Celebrating Diversity. We believe the Arts promote healing in our communities and have been intentional about the work that we have chosen to present. In 2022 we welcomed new board members, enhanced our social media presence, worked with many talented artists, performed community service, and established strategic partnerships. We are particularly proud of our work as it relates to Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Accessibility.

PERFORMANCE EXCELLENCE

We were able to present performances virtually and return to the stage for in-person full length performances reaching over 700 audience members.

SERVICE

As a community partner we worked with Hope for All for a Volunteer Day where we helped sort incoming donations. Their mission is to provide furniture, household items, and clothing to people in our community who are without the financial means to meet their basic needs.

TEACHING

AWP is committed to offering artists a place where they can learn and flourish in their craft. Productions are always a mixture of performing, analysis, in-depth discussions, and an exciting exchange of ideas. Learning happens in and out of the classroom.

GIVING

We are not only artists but we are committed to actively help the community in more ways than entertainment. We held a linen drive for our partner Hope for All and were able to provide a number of full-sized bed sheets to families in the community who need assistance.

CELEBRATING DIVERSITY

Celebrating Diversity is something that AWP is committed to. Being inclusive means inviting others to participate. As we focus on groups that are oftentimes underrepresented, AWP collaborated with other arts organizations to coordinate DEIA conversations and to establish what will now be an annual DEIA conference.
