

“Finding Employees is Easy... With the Right Source.”

Scott Robinson, President
Concepts in Millwork (Colorado Springs, CO)

"The MiLL National Training Center here in Colorado has provided us with several dozen work-ready trained employees. Each has been an immediate contributor to our firm's success. I want to see other regions have access to a trained workforce. That's why we established the National Woods Board."

The National Woods Board mission is to replicate the MiLL model nationwide by supplying a proven curriculum of technical education for wood products manufacturing to high schools and post secondary institutions. Our vision is to provide a means for industry to obtain work-ready employees, thus fulfilling our industry's massive workforce needs. Step one is developing a scalable curriculum that fits a variety of schools. Called the MiLL Method, this proven program is designed for schools to prepare students to go directly into industry.

Act now!

Your involvement is crucial in shaping the path forward. There are several ways you can join us: You can contribute by donating cash or product, or you can recommend a school/institution in your area to become a training center for your business.

Please scan the QR code or contact the National Woods Board directly using our URL. Your tax-deductible donation will make a significant impact to fuel the future of woodworking education.

Help us build that bright future together.

National Woods Board

www.nationalwoodsboard.org