

Title

Name Surname¹, Name Surname¹ and Name Surname²,

First author@institution mail

¹University, Department, State/Province, Postal code, Country

²University, Department, State/Province, Postal code, Country

Authors shall submit carefully written and proofread material. All the references should be written as APA guidelines¹, internet references should be reported based on the format indicated on Reference section² (1 paragraph).

Methods used were designed to investigate All acronyms for analytical instruments and methods must be spelt out on first use. All instruments and/or software should be indicated (1 paragraph).

Results should be explained clearly, with coherence and consistency. One Figure (or Table) below could be optional (1 paragraph).

Conclusions, this work demonstrates It introduces the topic, tells us why you are studying it, how you studied it, present major results, and what you think they mean. The conclusion is that we would all love to come to hear your talk (1 paragraph).

Figure 1. Soil sampling is a basic technique of mineral exploration. Cheaper than drilling, sampling can be used to quickly establish the existence and extent of hoped for mineralisation. Image reproduced from 'Geology for investors' (<https://www.geologyforinvestors.com/rock-and-soil-sampling-the-key-to-most-exploration-projects/>).

Acknowledgements:

Authors can acknowledge funding institutions and projects indicating the reference of the grants, as follows:

The authors acknowledge the funds of XXXXX...

5th International Student Conference on Medical Geology and Environmental Health
Latin American and Caribbean Edition (ISCMGEH-LAC)

This work has benefited from financial support by the XXX, project XXX
CEEInd/0154875215/2021; contract

References

A few references are permitted at the end of the abstract and they should be formatted as follows:

¹ Adams, D. (1979) A hitchhiker's guide to the galaxy, Earth & Space Cadet, 204: 151-165

² Author surname, name. (2015, date). Title [Online]. Available: <http://www.....>